

Geology

The demands placed on a material depend greatly on its end use.

MRM Konsult AB has a wealth of experience in terms of geological investigation and assessment and offers a variety of geological services, ranging from field investigations and sampling to laboratory analyses. Services include the identification of deposits containing natural aggregates and rocks suitable for construction purposes, the characterisation of geological, mineralogical, mechanical and chemical properties of deposits currently in use or proposed for future use, and consultancy services for road and railway building.